Samuel P. Brown has entered suit, through his attorney, Mills Dean, against the Pennsylvania Kalifoan Company to recover $20,000 damages for injuries received in a collision at Trenton, N. J., July 18, 1885.

As a train of cars was being backed into the depot of the Baltimore and Potomac railroad yesterday afternoon the engineer failed, for some reason, to stop the engine in time, which caused the cars to jump the track, tearing down the Iron railing, and crushing in a portion of the brick wail of the main building. There was no other injury done.

Washington city has no adjacent territory so desirable for suburban residences as that lying along the Metropolitan Branch of the Battimore and Ohio railroad. The country is elevated beyond the maiarial influences that infeat the city, has aimost perfect natural drainage, is beautifully wooded, abounds in springs of purest water, is traversed by smooth and well-kept wagon roads, and has adequaterain facilities. All these advantages are bossessed by no other region within easy reach, and they have already lured many of the demicens of the town, as is evidenced by the number of handsome villas and cosy cottages that adorn the landscape, seen from the windows of the train. To those who must bear the heat and burden of a Washington day in midsummer, the suburban retreats along the Metropolitan Branch afterdar refuge where the exhausted energies revive under the quiet but potent stimulus of verdant lawn, shaded paths, and the cooling breeze that comes laden with the perfume of the flower-decked fields, and bears healing baim from the pine woods upon its wings. The low charges for quarterly, monthly, and healing balm from the pine woods upon its wings.

The low charges for querierly, monthly, and other classes of commutation tolests place the pleasures and benefits of a summer hone in the country within thereach of persons of even moderate income.

The train service, while ample at present, will receive additions as the convenience of the patrons and the needs of the trailig results. 1117-1119 Penna. Ave. and 401, 403, 405, and 407 12th St. N. W

NEW YORK SHARPSHOOTERS Take a Sail Down the River and Visit Mount Vernon.

There were eighty-seven members of the New York Independent Sharpshooters, Capt. Diebl commanding, accompanied by forty ladies, on board of the steamer Cor-coran yesterday on her trip to Mount Vernon. The visitors were under charge of Messrs. Helmus, Appich, Vogt, Wolf, and Schroth, of the Washington Schuetzen Verein. The pilgrims, on reaching Mount Vernon, paid due homage to the tomb of Washington, after which they scattered about the grounds on a tour of inspection. At an appointed hour they sought the grove where Mr. Ernest Le Mour had a terior Department as follows:

After the good things were dispensed with, speeches were made by the Washington and New York mambers of the party. On the return trip to Washington the occasion was made pleasant by the vocal efforts of the excursionists. Last night the visitors spent their leisure time at the theaters. This afternoon they return home to New York. They all express great pleasure at their trip and the hearty welcome they received.

An Evening of Song.

Arecherche musicale was given with unusual colat at the Strathmore Arms last evening, by Alice Swain Hunter and her pupils, ably assisted by the Franz Abt Club. The programme was a choice collection of gems. Mrs. Hunter presided at the plane, and her large class of pupils, robed mostly in white, and with the summer's bloom looked like a tropical flower garden. The "Walts Song." by Miss Dunn, was one of the features of the programme. The young lady possesses, besides her beauty of face and person, a very charming voice, with excellent compass and evidently capable of highest execution in soprane scores. Miss Blasland merits the warmest enthusiasm for her very ably executed sole, "Sing, Smile, Siumber." Miss Hancock also received her share of honors.

The Abt Club were welcomed, and brought down the house with their artistic, stirring vocalism.

Mrs. Hunter's appearance for the final sales. An Evening of Song.

many never seemed so much at her best. The whole evening's performance was an emphatic musical treat. Mrs. Lockwood, the popular hostess, converted the dintag room into a veritable flower garden. The massive snowhalls that filled the vases were the most tasteful decorations that could have been selected. Refreshments were served to the class, and their friends.
